If how Policeman Levy had been ed only a fortudish ago, yet had called hastily to trial in advance ore than 100 accused persons, who languishing in the Tombs.

ge Martine stopped him, cautioning that criticism of the Court or its dure was not proper. Mr. Levy d any intention to criticise.

Cap: Anthony Allaire was called as the first witness. He testified that he had been a member of the Police Department since 1865, as five golden stripes on his cuff partially indicated.

He was Captain at one time of the Elizabeth street squad. Krumm preferred charges against him ten years $10, and the charges were dismissed.

Capt. Allaire said the Krumm place was orderly so far as he knew, and that it was conducted lawfully, except that Krumm frequently encroached upon proscribed hours in the sale of liquor. Allaire has been a Police Captain since 1867, and was nine years at the Eldridge street station.

Mr. Levy wanted to prove by Capt. Allaire that Kuenstler Halle was a bad place, but when Judge Martine said that, to his mind, if it were shown that Krumm's was a bad place that would only make Policeman Levy's crime so much the greater Mr. Levy dropped that line.

Otto Strohl, an electrician, at 18 De-lancey street, the next witness, testified that he repaired that famous "push bell" four months ago, having fixed the battery two months before that.

Mr. Wellman objected that the bell was not on trial.

Judge Martine said it was material as tending to affect the credit of Capt.

Krumm as a witness, Krumm' having testified that the bell had been there fitten years, and that it had not been hoondition to use in a year.

perhaps six or eight of the other kind."
Mr. Wellman drew out that these bonds were accepted at the station during the captaincy of Capt. Devery.
"And Capt. Devery was recently tried for neglect of duty, wasn't he?"
Mr. Levy objected. The question was ruled out and then Mr. Levy said:
"I think it only fair to say that Capt. Devery was acquitted."
At this Judge Martine opened the vials of his wrath on the lawyer.
"Well, then, Mr. Wellman and I were both wrong." said Levy, quietly, fanning himself placidly, much to the asgravation of Judge Martine.

"You are sure that Capt. Krumm called Policeman Levy a vile name, and said he was going to get square with him for arresting him?" asked Mr. Wellman, and getting an affirmative answer, fired this one:
"Don't you know. Mr. Selig, that as a matter of fact Levy never did arrest (apt. Krumm, and that he was transferred to Harlem because he didn't arrest Krumm."

capt. Krumm, and ferred to Harlem because he didn't arrest Krumm."

"I don't know anything about that, I am only telling you what Krumm said. I don't know how big a liar he is," retorted the milkman.

Mr. Wellman tried to impugn Selig's motive in giving bail for law-breakers and for testifying for Levy, Lawyer asked:

Mr. Selig, you are assistant leader in Tanumany Hall in the Third District, and that is the reason you are fre-quently sent for to go on bail bonds.

MR. CLAUSEN'S LETTER.

He Will Give His Answer on the Speedway Matter on Monday.

President Claussen, of the Park Board, left this morning for his country a reply to the letter of Augustus St. Ganden, W. M. Chase and Staniford Ganden, W. M. Chase and Stabiford White, protesting against the building of the speedway without the supervision of a landscape architect.

The letter will be brought back to the city on Monday by Mr. Clausen, and will be submitted to the Mayor on his return from Saratoga. It is understood that Mr. Clausen still adheres to his original position, that a landscape architect is unnecessary until after the driveway is laid out.

stairs, where an "Evening World" reporter asked to see him. This was refused. He had no time to talk; he was too busy.

A note was sent in asking if he could reply to the allegations made by excapi. Doherty.

"I have nothing to say!" was the reply. In the interview printed in "The World" this morning. Doherty fearlessly arraigned Commissioner Martin, and incidentally questioned the good sense of Commissioners Sheehan, Murray and Kerwin in connection with the decision reached in the trial of Doherty and Ward Men Hock and Meehan.

"The oddest thing about the trial," said ex-Capt. Doherty, "which shows what a farce it was, is this: Commissioner Sheehan admitted that he didn't believe Mrs. Thurow's story, and Commissioner Sheehan admitted that he didn't believe Mrs. Thurow's story, and Commissioner Sheehan admitted that he didn't believe Mrs. Thurow's story, and Commissioner Sheehan admitted that he didn't believe Mrs. Thurow say for the said in a newspaper interview next day practically the same thing. They both said I was broken for taking Mrs. Thurow as bondswoman, Now, If that is so, what excuse can they give for breaking Hock and Meehan? Neither of them had any bail charges against him, the only charges being that they had taken more from Mrs. Thurow So if Mrs. Thurow lied, as two Commissioners admit they believed, for what reason, tell me, were Hock and Meehan fired? In Meehan's case especially, there was not the slightest corroboration, but as they tried us three together they had to broak all or none.

"That was the very thing that my counsel objected to in the beginning. He protested against lumping the cases, Right there is a first-class point to be brought up in the appeal of my case!"

"I am surprised at the conduct of Martin." said the big ex-policeman. "I used to go to Headquarters and sit in his room with him for hours. I had a right to expect a fair show from him, a friend at least. As it was, I knew a week ahead that he was going to break me, evidence or no evidence, that he mish best friend.

"But," added Doherty. "the whole thing dates back to Parkhurst. He is a hustler, and you know that he finally scored the Commissioners so that they ordered Byrnes to make the big trans-fers. Martin got nervous when the ordered Byrnes to make the big transfers. Martin got nervous when the newspapers got after his record. He hollered murder then."

Doherty said that Mr. Nicoll had become counsel for the captains through orders issued from Headquarters. Doherty had told Nicoll that he had transferred his $18,000 house to his wife. Doherty was astonished, he says, at the flerce prosecution of Assistant District-Attorney Osborne. He said that he had personally asked Col. Fellows to a favor him in the District-Attorney's office.

Doherty complained that George F. Boesch. of the Seventh Assembly District, had made his life miserable by running the precinct, backed by the authority that Martin had appointed Doherty Police Captain. He also scored Wellman for posting Martin on points in he was going to bring out in the trial and instructing the President how to strule on them.
